A Global Perspective

More than 100 world-class presenters and notable physician anesthesiologists from around the world gather to educate and unite the specialty on a global scale.

Long Hard Days are Good for Us and Our Patients (WFSA International Panel)

Saturday, October 24 | 1:10-3:10 p.m.

Anesthesia frequently involves long clinical days that also may be stressful. International speakers from four continents will discuss this in relation to physiology, resident education, European approaches and O.R. scheduling.

Equipment, Supplies and Sustainability: International Perspectives (International Panel)

Sunday, October 25 | 1:10-3:10 p.m.

This panel will provide perspectives from low/middle income and affluent nations on resource conservation and sustainability. Practices will be contextualized to health system funding (public vs. private), regulatory requirements and legal pressures, as well as health outcomes. Objectives of the U.K. National Health Service Sustainability Unit will be discussed. Opportunities for practice improvements that conserve precious natural and capital resources without compromising patient care will be suggested.

You Too Can be an Anesthesia Leader – An International Perspective (International Panel)

Monday, October 26 | 1:10-3:10 p.m.

In this international leadership panel you'll hear from four colleagues who will share issues they have encountered in leadership development. Strategies for finding good mentors, balancing family and work life, and navigating research and organizational pathways will be discussed.

U.K. Military Anaesthesia: A Perioperative Approach to Trauma Medicine (USSA/AVAA Session)

Tuesday, October 27 | 9:45-11:45 a.m.

Recent conflict in Afghanistan has brought the U.S. and U.K. military together at the forefront of major trauma care and highlighted some of the differences between the national approaches to anaesthetists in general. All members of the panel have worked in the trauma hospital in Bastion, Helmand; most have been involved in the pre-hospital helicopter retrieval system, the MERT. Some have acted as medical directors and been involved with research and critical care transport. They all bring significant influence to the NHS, particularly in terms of transfusion, training, ethics and management. The panel will highlight such influences and the important role U.K. anaesthetists have in all aspects of the patient pathway, both military and civilian, and how their role as perioperative physicians remains their main focus.

Advancing Anaesthesiology in Europe (ESA Panel)

Tuesday, October 27 | 1-3 p.m.

Join us for a discussion about hot topics in European anaesthesiology right now, including the role of the European examination and workforce/migrations issues.

For details regarding session speakers, please visit goanesthesiology.org.

PLENARY LECTURES

New times so we start the day together.

Emery A. Rovenstine Lecture: Without Science There Is Little Art in Anesthesiology

Presented by: James C. Eisenach, M.D.

Monday, October 26 | 8-9:15 a.m.

As physicians, we care for patients in a very particular way, applying constantly changing scientific knowledge and communicating this to patients and their families, one case at a time. The best physicians are lifelong learners of science, and also honest, compassionate communicators. This lecture focuses on how you can apply practical approaches to better learn and represent science while closely listening to and communicating with those in your care.

The following awards will be presented at the Rovenstine Lecture:

- Distinguished Service Award: Henry Rosenberg, M.D.
- Excellence in Research
- Presidential Scholar
- ASA Nicholas M. Greene, M.D., Outstanding Humanitarian Contribution Award

John W. Severinghaus Lecture on Translational Science: Disruptive Technology in Anesthesiology

Presented by: Steven L. Shafer, M.D.

Tuesday, October 27 | 8:30-9:30 a.m.

Anesthesiology was founded on the most disruptive technology imaginable: rendering the human brain reversibly insensible. In the decades after ether, we continuously introduced disruptive technology such as local anesthesia, fluid therapy, new classes of drugs and endotracheal intubation. Modern critical care can be traced directly to a disruptive invention by John Severinghaus - the blood gas machine.

SOAP/FAER Gertie Marx Plenary Lecture: Are We Speaking the Same Language? Improving Outcomes Through Multidisciplinary Collaboration and Clear Communication

Presented by: David Birnbach, M.D., M.PH.

Sunday, October 25 | 8-9 a.m.

This presentation is designed to improve outcomes and eliminate preventable harm through multidisciplinary collaboration and improved communication.

Lewis H. Wright Memorial Lecture: Cognitive Changes After Surgery: Don't Ask, Don't Tell

Presented by: Kirk Hogan, M.D., J.D.

Sunday, October 25 | 8-9:15 a.m.

The Lewis H. Wright Memorial Lecture of the Wood Library-Museum of Anesthesiology (WLM) honors Dr. Lewis Wright, a distinguished pioneer in American anesthesiology, who gave of himself tirelessly to dignify and accredit the discipline of anesthesiology as a clinical science and medical specialty. In 1955, ASA recognized his contributions by according him its highest honor, the Distinguished Service Award. This lectureship will serve to remind us now, and in the years to come, of his honored place in the specialty of anesthesiology.

Ellison C. Pierce Memorial Lecture: Expanding Our Influence: How the Perioperative Surgical Home Will Improve Patient Safety

Presented by: Mark A. Warner, M.D.

Saturday, October 24 | 10:45-11:45 a.m.

This presentation will highlight the patient safety constructs espoused by Ellison "Jeep" Pierce, M.D. when he started the Anesthesia Patient Safety Foundation, and illustrate how the ASA's Perioperative Surgical Home concept strongly supports and augments Dr. Pierce's goals for improving patient safety. Dr. Warner will describe how the influence and impact of anesthesiologists on perioperative patient safety can be accelerated and dramatically increased when they guide the full continuum of care.

"The participants learn from each other rather than just listening to a lecture. It is a good way to learn how people around the country approach cases in a variety of ways.

I have always come away from a session with something that I can begin to utilize in my practice."

Mark C. Phillips, M.D.

Meeting Information @ Your Fingertips

The educational grids, Scientific Abstracts and Meeting & Exhibitor Guide will be available as PDFs. The educational grids will be available by track and by day. You can find these materials online at goanesthesiology.org/guides as of June 3.

FEATURED LECTURES

History Panel: The Lazarus Syndrome: A Brief History of Resuscitation

Moderator: Douglas R. Bacon, M.D., M.A.

This panel is designed to explore the rich history of resuscitation and its relationship to anesthesiology.

Celebration of Research: Updated

Sunday, October 26 | 9:35-11:05 a.m.

The Celebration of Research will take place after the Emery A. Rovenstine Memorial Lecture. The ASA Excellence in Research and Presidential Scholar awardees will present brief lectures on their research accomplishments, awards will be announced for the Academy of Anesthesiology Research Mentor and Resident Research Essay, and there will be a brief update on FAER activities. FAER-Helrich Research Lecture: Can We Do Better? How Big Data Can Help

Presented by: Laurent G. Glance, M.D.

Monday, October 26 | 1:10-2:10 p.m.

Big data will increasingly shape how health care is delivered. It will be used to redesign our health care system so that it is more equitable, less expensive and of higher-quality. Big data will be used to align financial incentives with the goals of health care reform. We will increasingly rely on data analytics to drive clinical decision-making. The goal of this talk will be to gain a better understanding of how big data can help physician anesthesiologists and surgeons improve surgical outcomes.

Wood Library-Museum of Anesthesiology Patrick Sim Forum on the History of Anesthesiology

Moderator: David B. Waisel, M.D.

Monday, October 26 | 2-4 p.m.

The origin and development of a medical specialty affects the current opportunities and challenges of the specialty. For example, in the United States, the origins of anesthesia practice in dentistry, nursing and medicine echo today. At the 2015 Patrick Sim Forum, we will examine the development of professional medical anesthesia in China, France, Japan, and South Africa. This exploration will not only improve our knowledge of their anesthesiology practices, but may also provide us with new perspective of our own history.

Be sure to check out the exciting PBLDs, ePosters, MCCs and workshops! Search online at goanesthesiology.org

"A large variety of scientific sessions are presented almost continuously from morning until evening, Saturday through Wednesday. Thus, regardless of what days a member can attend the meeting, there will be scientific sessions available.

Whatever your clinical or research interests, there are cutting-edge scientific sessions to interest every attendee at the meeting."

Joy L. Hawkins, M.D.

Residents & Fellows Medical Students

Join us for a valuable and informative weekend featuring dedicated tracks with these new and helpful sessions.

Residents & Fellows Track

Resident Oral Board Prep

Having a deeper understanding of the oral board's process and format can help you better prepare for the exam. During this session, you'll be asked sample questions and experience mock stems to illustrate and reinforce structure to various topics. In this session, you have the chance to interact with session presenters and critique a mock examiner with both bad, then improved responses to questions.

Critical Care Anesthesia

Join us as Dr. Steven Lisco, Chairman and Professor of Anesthesiology at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, shares his experiences as a physician anesthesiologist in the field of critical care medicine. Dr. Kristina Goff, a recent fellow at the University of Washington, will then reflect on the highlights of her training in the ICU and share insights into the many opportunities available to residents interested in a critical care fellowship.

NEW Job Hunting 101

Are you closing in on the final years of your training and wondering what to do next? Learn how to implement a timeline to manage your career search and strategies to obtain your ideal attending position. Career experts will share options available to you, as well as interview and contract negotiation tips.

Medical Students Track

NEW Finance 101: Part 1 and Part 2 – Tactical Student Loan Management and Navigating the Financial Services Industry

Part 1 introduces you to planning strategies that minimize loan payments during residency, maximize forgiveness potential and enhance contract negotiation opportunities. In Part 2, you'll learn how investment advisors and insurance agents get paid, develop a better understanding of how disability and life insurance work, and become more discerning about choosing a financial advisor.

NEW Learning and Education During Residency in the Era of Health Care Reform

Health care reform has forced anesthesiology departments to put an increased focus on clinical productivity, often at the expense of their academic mission. This session explores the challenges faced by academic departments in maintaining their education and research programs in the face of these ever-increasing clinical pressures.

Residency Program Meet and Greet

This event is the highlight of the Medical Student Component and has been beneficial for all medical students (especially fourth-year medical students) applying to anesthesiology residency programs. This highly-anticipated offering allows exhibitors an interactive forum to showcase their programs and provides attendees with the opportunity to meet with program representatives in a casual, one-on-one setting. Residents and fellows are invited to attend.
